

Directions to BIBCO OpCo Meeting

The meeting room, West Dining Room, is on the sixth floor of the Madison Building, at 101 Independence Ave., South East, Washington, D.C. The closest Metro stops are Capitol South (Blue and Orange Lines), immediately at the rear of the Madison Building, and Union Station (Red Line), approximately four blocks away.

The Library of Congress buildings are closed to the public before 8:30 a.m. After that time, the only Madison Building entrance open to the public is the front entrance, facing Independence Avenue.

After entering from Independence Avenue, go through the airport-style metal detector and x-ray machine for luggage. On is a corridor down which one should not go, past that a bank of six elevators, colored gold. Take one of these elevators to the sixth floor.

On leaving the elevators, go left, past the antique globes on display in that lobby, and, facing room number LM 601, bear again left, towards the Librarian's Office. This will go into the Green Core of the building. At the end of the corridor, go left again, into the Yellow Core. At the end of this corridor are located the Montpelier Room (a buffet style dining room), and West Dining Room and Dining A, both used primarily for meetings.
